Magnetic refrigeration is a cooling technology based on the magnetocaloric effect. This technique can be used to attain extremely low temperatures, as well as the ranges used in common refrigerators. The effect was first observed by a German physicist Warburg (1881) Subsequently by French physicist P. Weiss and Swiss physicist A. Piccard in 1917. The fundamental principle was suggested by P ...

Data center immersion cooling involves directly immersing IT hardware in a non-conductive liquid such as 3M[®],[®] Novec[®],[®] Engineered Fluids. Heat generated by the electronic components is directly and efficiently transferred to the fluid, reducing the need for active cooling components, such as interface materials, heat sinks and fans that are common in air cooling.
